18	LETTER
19	There appears to be confusion about Substack's place of service of process, so Plaintiff wishes
20	to set the record straight in this letter. The Defendant has stated: "Plaintiff could have easily served
21	Substack's registered agent for service of process, which Substack maintains pursuant to its corporate
22
23	registration obligations." (ECF #34, p. 5). However, Substack's website clearly states on their "Chat
24	with Substack" feature when asked "Where can I send legal documents in person" and "Where can I
25	send a process server" that their address for service is 111 Sutter Street, 7 th Floor San Francisco CA,
26	94104 (see screenshots). Having read this, Plaintiff hired and sent a process server to this address to serve Substack legal papers but they were unreasonably denied entrance into the building, three times.

Where can I send a process server?

You can send all legal or law enforcement requests to Substack at the following address:

111 Sutter Street, 7th Floor San Francisco, CA, 94104

The address 111 Sutter Street, 7th Floor San Francisco CA, 94104 is the only address mentioned on Substack's website; no separate registered agent address is listed nor is easy to find on the internet. If you simply run web searches for Substack's address for service – what shows up on a Google search is: 111 Sutter Street, 7th Floor San Francisco CA, 94104 (not another address). Plaintiff has no clue what the separate registered agent address is or how he is even expected to have known about it. The Plaintiff therefore stands by his accusation(s) made earlier Substack have acted unprofessionally and engaged in misconduct during these proceedings when filed (wasting Plaintiff's process server costs).
